Crowd Waiched Parade.

Promptly at 3 o'clock the department, with the exception of the reserves companies, assembled at Third and Broad Streets and were lined upment.

From the direction of Chief Joynes, When the procession moved east on the commission and several guests occupied carrieges at the lead of the parameter. For some years past the State Corporation Commission has annually assessed the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Railway Company with franchise taxes, amounting to 1 per cent. on its gross receipts, the same amount paid by the other railways on the State. Just as often injunctions have been assessed the Richmond to prevent the of Broad Street, which was lined with of Broad Street, which was lined with speciators, the procession had the right of way. been inspected, and the signal was given to break ranks, and the restless horses began the journey back to their stalls. Hundreds of spectators who stood on the sidewalks also returned to their work, but with a conviction stronger than ever that Richmond's facilities for combating flames are second to none in the country for its size.

Spectacular Work.

Incidentally, the scene was enlivened by the performance of the hook and ladder companies, which ran their lifesaving ladders far above some of the high buildings on Broad Street, and with the hose tower showed how a stream could be played in any direction from a height more than that of the ordinary building, while the men operating it remained on the wagon. During the inspection the services of several extra policemen were necessary to keep back the crowd and clear the street car tracks. There was not a single accident.

In the board meeting following the inspection the resignation of W. J. Botto, recently elected to the notice.

PLAN TWO MEETINGS

Early Next Year.

Interest in the work represented by the Virginia Conference on Charities and Correction has grown to such an extent that two conferences may be held next year. The plan, as outlined yesterday by Dr. J. T. Mastin, secretary of the State Board or Charities and Corrections, contemplates a meeting to be held next spring to consider work among children, and another to take places in November or December of next year, at which legislation to be placed before the General Assembly at its next session should be the topic.
